NEWS AND PERSONAL.

THE WEATHER in London, England, yesterday, was delightful.

THE NET proceeds of the fair in aid of the Orphans, recently held at Boston, amounted to $21,000.

SENATOR SPRAGUE has appointed Col. W. H. Reynolds his substitute in the Rhode Island delegation to the Chicago Convention.

THE PER DIEM allowed members of the State Convention, now in session at Jackson, Miss., ceased on yesterday.

C. J. BRACKENS, [illegible] of Indianapolis, was robbed on the street, last Thursday night, of nearly $1,100 by garroters.

A LARGE cave, embracing several chambers, and already explored more than six hundred feet, has been discovered in Armagh, Mifflin county, Pa.

CARDACH, a negro delegate to the Mississippi Reconstruction Convention, has been indicted by the grand jury of Jackson, Miss., for stealing convention warrants from another delegate.

IN THE House, yesterday, Mr. Woodward offered a resolution to appoint a committee to investigate the facts relative to the Missouri delegation sending a letter to Mr. Henderson, but the Speaker ruled that it was not a question of privilege.

THERE ARE twelve hundred Americans and a large number of Germans already employed in mining in Chihuahua, Mexico. The gold placers of Guanacebi extend a distance of a hundred and twenty miles.

THE POLICE are cautioned against the operations of one Lee Mayer, who is traveling in the Western States representing himself as an agent of [illegible] & Co., and other firms of Cincinnati.

THE GRAND Jury at Galveston, Texas, have found true bills against the defrauders of the revenue in the [illegible] case. The property recently recovered and [illegible] by special agent Stonaker, has been forfeited and was yesterday condemned for sale by the District Court.

GEN. BUCHANAN announces the result of the vote on the new constitution and for Congressional candidates in Louisiana. The majority for the ratification of the constitution is 17,418. James Mann, Democrat, of Second District, is elected to Congress.

IN HILLSBORO, Ohio, on Wednesday morning, an old negro, named Willis Tate was stabbed through the heart by another negro named [illegible]. There had been a difficulty between them for some time, in which the wife of [illegible] was some way concerned. The murderer was captured.

LARGE MEETINGS were held at Bangor, at Bath and other places in Maine, Thursday night, favoring impeachment. The meeting at Bangor adopted resolutions expressing the hope that notwithstanding their [illegible] to the contrary both Fessenden and Morrill would vote for conviction.

CAPT. WILSON, of the British steamer Palmyra, from Liverpool, was before United States Commissioner Hallett, of Boston, yesterday, on a complaint of carrying more passengers than the law allows. He plead not guilty and gave recognizance to answer on the 9th of July next.

A GERMAN named Chas. Granz, attempted to shoot his son-in-law in a brewery in Albany, N. Y., Thursday afternoon, but the ball missed, whereupon Granz put the pistol to his own head and discharged a bullet into his brain, from the effects of which he died in four hours. The tragedy grew out of a family quarrel.

NOT A single divorce has ever been granted in South Carolina, since its settlement. The new constitution, however, contains a section providing for the legal separation of dissatisfied husbands and wives. This onward advance, one of the papers thinks, is something like "the progress of the serpent in Paradise."

THE EMPEROR of Brazil has no sons, but two daughters. If he persists in his intention to abdicate, it is supposed the Princess Isabella, his eldest daughter, will succeed to the throne. She is almost twenty-two years old, and is the wife of the Count D'Eu, son of the Duke De Nemours, and grandson of King Louis Philippe.

THE GRAND jury of Worcester, Mass., Thursday, reported two bills against Silas and Charles James for the murder of a man named Clark in that city in February. Also two bills against David Dira and Josephine Lafamme for the murder of Louis Lafamme at Webster in April. The trials will take place before a full bench of the Supreme Judicial Court Tuesday, June 2d.

LEWIS LANE is under arrest in Pittsburg, on suspicion of poisoning his wife, who died suddenly the other day, after drinking some whisky he had given her. A quantity of drugs found in his possession are being examined, as also the fragments of a bottle, which he threw into the fire when arrested, and which it is supposed contained poison. The deceased was Lane's sixth wife.

ON TUESDAY night between 8 and 9 o'clock during the absence of the clerks, the postoffice at Fort Wayne, Ind., was robbed of three mail bags including the New York and Philadelphia mail. Two of the bags were found next morning in a lumber yard, with their contents strewn about them. About four thousand letters are said to be missing, principally intended for New York, Cleveland, Harrisburg, Pittsburg and Indianapolis.

C. M. JEFFRIES, imprisoned at Sing Sing, N. Y., January 4, 1863, for killing John W. Matthews, and sentenced for life to the State prison, was found wounded in the loft of the stable of the prison Thursday, and died about 3:15 o'clock. He was insensible when found and could give no clue as to who had committed the assault. It is supposed deceased had money on his person, and that he was killed for it.

A MUSCATINE, Iowa, dispatch to the Chicago Republican, says that after the recent tornado near the former city, a stalk of ground cherries was found, with leaves green, the pods yellow and fruit perfectly ripe. This stage of the plant is at least four months ahead of this latitude, nor has it attained to that stage even in our most Southern States, so that it is supposed that these berries must have been brought by the tornado from some of the West India islands, where the storm probably originated.

THE COMMITTEE appointed at the Hancock meeting in New York, the other day, have seen ex-Governor Seymour, and they report that he is not, and will not be, under any circumstances, a candidate for the Presidency, and that he accepted an election as delegate to the Convention expressly to prevent the introduction of his name as a candidate. It is hoped by those engaged in the movement that Hancock's name can be got on the ticket for the second office, if they should fail in procuring his nomination for President.

A ROW occurred at a social party given by a Cleveland hook-and-ladder company on Tuesday night, in the course of which J. P. Ankens, a painter, was shot in the groin by a man calling himself J. A. Pollard, or Ballard. The circumstances of the shooting are not clearly known, but it appears that Pollard was accused of insulting a lady of the company, was ejected from the room, and, as he claims, was severely beaten. He says he drew his pistol only to protect himself, and did not know the man who was shot.

A CONSTANTINOPLE journal announces a circumcision on a grand scale as about to take place at Kandili. The son of Mustapha Fazil Pasha is about to undergo the initiatory rite of his religion, and five hundred boys—the children of parents in reduced circumstances—are to be treated to it at his highness' expense. It is computed that the ceremony will last five days, the surgeons being unable to finish off more than one hundred patients a day, and that it will cost upward of [illegible]. Presents are to be made to the parents of the circumcised, and the whole party is to be lodged and fed until their wounds are healed.

THE Mississippi Democratic Convention re-nominated Governor Humphreys by acclamation, [illegible] Falconer for Lieutenant Governor, C. E. Hooker Attorney General, and C. K. Marshall Superintendent of Immigration. The greatest harmony prevailed.

R. H. DANA, Jr., yesterday, introduced in the Massachusetts House a resolution [illegible] deprecating all attempts to bring to bear upon Senators in the discharge of their judicial duties, the force of associated local opinions, and still more the force of organization, discipline, and [illegible] more the opinion or wishes of political parties. It was indefinitely postponed [illegible] to 90. A similar resolution was introduced in the Senate by Gen. Schuyler and referred to the Committee on Federal Relations.

A FEW days ago a dispatch from New York reported a case in the Supreme Court in which a widow obtained a verdict of $5,000 against a man for the killing of her husband. The [illegible] related by the Times are rather queer. The [illegible] difficulty grew out of a difference respecting the interpretation of terms of a lease, and the defendant, instead of taking the case to court, sought to obtain his rights by force. In the melee consequent upon his unlawful [illegible], one of the workmen discharged his pistol with fatal effect at the husband of the plaintiff. The remarkable phase of the trial appeared in the fact that the man who used the pistol was produced by the widow as the chief witness in support of her claim. Upon his testimony the jury declared in her favor to the full extent of the law.

The Lebanon Convention.

The proceedings of the 7th Judicial District Convention, held at Lebanon on Thursday, will be found specially reported for to-day's COURIER. The Convention has nominated most worthy and competent gentlemen, both for Judge and Attorney. Indeed it could not have done otherwise with such material to choose from.

Judge Kavanaugh is known throughout the State, as well for his old fashioned, orthodox Democracy, as for his sterling integrity, firmness, and ability as a judicial officer. For years he represented Anderson county in the State Legislature, afterwards was Circuit Judge of that District, and still later was the Democratic candidate for a seat upon the appellate bench, but at a time when true blue Democrats, no matter what might be their superior merits, had but a poor show.

Mr. Schooling is a young gentleman who has never heretofore held office, but is eminently fitted for the position to which he will soon be elevated. He is a close student, ambitious to excel, and of habits every way commendable. The election of these gentlemen is beyond question.

Messrs. Montague, Gaither and Thurman are gentlemen of ability, sound political principles, and considerable popularity. Either of them would have honored the office to which he aspired. Let them bide their time. They may have better luck in their next venture.

The News To-Day.

Our special Washington correspondent will keep us promptly posted about events transpiring at Washington to-day, and his dispatches soon as they are received will be posted on our bulletin board for the benefit of the public.

Brownlow Dying.

Our special from Nashville last night announced that Brownlow was in a dying condition at his residence at Knoxville at one o'clock yesterday afternoon. The announcement of the probable acquittal of President Johnson was a terrible shock to him.

ATLANTIC AND GREAT WESTERN RAILROAD.

Reduction of Fare.

We are informed by the enterprising and popular agent, Maj. Dawes, who comes to the interests of this great route at this point, that the fare between Cincinnati, Louisville and [illegible] to New York has been reduced twenty per cent. The A. and G. W. railroad is in every particular the most desirable route to New York and the East. It is amply supplied with rolling stock, and the tracks are kept in good order. The route takes passengers through a beautiful and level country, and everything is systematically arranged for speed, safety and [illegible] connection at the different points. The cars are of the most modern style, and [illegible] furnished. Indeed, it would be impossible to add anything to the conveniences already provided for passengers. They have brought the road and all its facilities to the highest state of perfection and are gaining increasing popularity. The reduction of 20 per cent, between the points named is no small desideratum, and cannot fail to meet with the ready appreciation of the traveling public. The complete working of this great railroad, and extra provisions for the safety of passengers, render it the favorite route with those accustomed to making periodical trips to New York and the Eastern cities.

Persons contemplating such a journey would do well to call upon Major Dawes, who is as [illegible] genial and accommodating [illegible] to the important office which he fills for this company. With him, it is a labor of love to impart information to travelers, and, when desired, [illegible] them on their way [illegible] over this great railroad thoroughfare to [illegible].

Robinson's Circus and Menagerie.

It will be borne in mind that the mammoth and superior menagerie and circus will pitch its tent on the corner of East and Walnut, on Wednesday the 27th inst., remaining three days. Of the menagerie—a large and excellent collection of animals—too much in commendation we are assured by exchanges, cannot well be said. We can assure our friends that all who attend this show will be more than satisfied with the acrobats, the leaping of Kelly, the riding of Cordelia, and the other truly excellent features of this great combination. Without meaning any disparagement to other similar establishments, we think from what we can learn, that this is one of the best traveling. Look out for the great show on the 27th instant, remaining only three days.

A RAID ON A CONFECTIONERY.—Three youthful darkies, who have a "natheral" [illegible] for sweetmeats, sneaked into Brady's [illegible] on the corner of Sixth and [illegible] streets, last night while the attendants were at [illegible] and loaded themselves with cakes and candies. They were seen coming out of the store, and their actions arousing suspicion, the cry of "stop thief!" was raised, when they ran up street at the top of their speed. One of them was [illegible] and captured in front of the Willard Hotel, another was scared into a halt by the discharge of a pistol in the air by officer Pat Hilton, and the third was splitting the [illegible] mud up an alley when last seen, making good his escape.

LOUISVILLE AND CINCINNATI.—We were informed by gentlemen coming from [illegible], Kentucky, that the contract for [illegible] for Nelson county jail was awarded to our [illegible] citizen, F. W. Merz, of this city. We can assure our friends [illegible] that they could not have selected a worthier gentleman than F. W. Merz to execute the work. Mr. Merz is now [illegible] a large order for [illegible] from a gentleman at Covington, [illegible] Cincinnati. The advantages of Louisville as a manufacturing city are beginning to be understood and appreciated as they should be.

REAL ESTATE SALES.—On Thursday [illegible] & McAtee sold a fifteen year leasehold on a frame cottage and lot on Tenth street, between Madison and Chestnut, for $700.

On the same evening, S. P. Whaley sold a brick cottage and lot, 30 by 200 feet, on College street, between Floyd and Preston, for $2,100.

THE WANDELL GRAYS.—This fine company of the State Guard was out on drill last night with their fine military band, and in passing the [illegible] office honored us with a salute. The "Grays" is composed of residents of the Tenth and Eleventh wards, and numbers eighty gallant men. Capt. Charles Stevens commands, with Lieutenants [illegible] and Akin next in rank.

ARREST OF A HORSE THIEF.—Henry Blunt, a negro, was yesterday arrested and lodged in jail, charged with stealing a horse from Wm. Cottrell, of [illegible] county. He will [illegible] before the City Court this morning.

The great [illegible] Circus (which will be here on Monday) has been [illegible] in northern Kentucky, notwithstanding the unfavorable weather. We learn that on Wednesday it took in $1,800 at Lexington.

JAY [illegible].—This [illegible] was recently [illegible] Mr. [illegible] of the P. R. has taken up his [illegible] Lebanon Springs, near [illegible]. He [illegible] in superb health and spirits.

Horse-thieves are again at work in the surrounding country, and [illegible] it not all the animals stolen are [illegible] their confederates in [illegible].

THE CONVENTION AT LEBANON.

Schooling for Commonwealth's Attorney.

[Reported for the Louisville Courier.]
LEBANON, KY., May 15.

The convention of the Democracy of the Seventh Judicial District met in [illegible] Hall in this place on yesterday, the 14th inst. A large attendance of delegates was reported, and the proceedings were of the most pleasant and harmonious character.

Joseph H. [illegible], Esq., of Taylor, was chosen Chairman, and Edward M. [illegible], of Nelson, Secretary.

CIRCUIT JUDGE.

[illegible] to order, G. W. Kavanaugh, of Mercer, and H. S. Montague, of Taylor, were named by their friends. Mr. Kavanaugh was nominated on the first ballot by the following vote: Kavanaugh, 106; Montague, 77. The nomination of Mr. Kavanaugh was made unanimous.

COMMONWEALTH'S ATTORNEY.

The gentlemen put in nomination were James W. Schooling, of Marion, Nat Gaither, of Mercer, and [illegible] Thurman, of Washington.

The first ballot was somewhat scattering. After the second, Mr. Thurman was withdrawn. The third and last resulted as follows:

	Schooling	Gaither
Anderson		16
[illegible]	9	5
Marion	34
Mercer		18
Nelson	20	8
Taylor	[illegible]	[illegible]
Washington	11	14
Total	[illegible]	[illegible]

Messrs. Kavanaugh and Schooling were waited upon by a committee appointed to that purpose, [illegible] and [illegible] into the convention, where they returned their thanks for the honor conferred.

The defeated aspirants were called out and bore cheerful testimony to the worth of their successful competitors, and pledged them their earnest support.

There is no doubt of the election of Messrs. Kavanaugh and Schooling by overwhelming majorities. The Democracy of this district has never been so strong, so determined and so enthusiastic.

WHITE HEAVY.—Our sanctum was deliciously perfumed last evening by the sweet odors of a most [illegible] bouquet of fragrant flowers, to which was attached a card addressed to our [illegible] local [illegible] clerk, Mr. Wright. It was sent by a charming young lady, who, no doubt, intended it for the "local." She managed, however, to get it in the Wright, and if she was not right, we feel assured that she will manage to get Wright before the lasting of the spring flowers.

HEAVY TOBACCO SALE.—The largest sale of tobacco this season was made yesterday at the Louisville Warehouse of Messrs. May & Co., corner of Tenth and Main. One hundred hogsheads were offered, with only four rejections, making ninety-six hogsheads sold.

Governor Stevenson has issued his proclamation, ordering an election in the Ninth Judicial District, on the first Monday in August, for Circuit Judge, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Hon. Wm. E. Arthur.

The Chas. Piper we spoke of yesterday as being under arrest is quite a different individual from Mr. Charles L. Piper, a most worthy and estimable young gentleman long engaged in the house of Nantz, Roamer & Owens.

CITY FEATURES.

A Valuable Invention

Messrs. John M. Myers & Co. have invented an [illegible] the [illegible] work [illegible] in the [illegible] short time of five minutes, and without [illegible]. The work is performed by a double [illegible] which forces the [illegible] from the vault to a mammoth cask, or receptacle, which is [illegible] a wagon. A [illegible] attached to a gas-furnace [illegible] the odor from the cask, and it is rendered [illegible] the hose and cask are [illegible] and when [illegible] removed from the [illegible]. This great [illegible] of the contents of vaults being done as [illegible] of [illegible]. The same pump is also on a wagon, and is worked by two cranks, which may be operated by two or four men. The cask used as the receptacle of the excrement, and the pump are backed up to the pavement on the street, and the hose extended to the vault in the rear of the house or yard. When we consider that it performs the work in five minutes, the value and usefulness of such a contrivance for a city like Louisville cannot be overestimated. It supplies a public want which has long been greatly [illegible]. If we regard it—aside from [illegible] the [illegible] heretofore attendant on such [illegible]—in the advantage of health alone it may justly be deemed one of the greatest inventions of the age.

The Board of Health has often canvassed this great public want, but until this machine was brought to perfection, the authorities had made but little progress toward surmounting the evil. The city has abounded in nuisances arising from privy vaults, and the infected atmosphere during the heat of summer left us liable to any and all epidemics that might sweep over the country. The complete success of this valuable invention has already been fully demonstrated, and that it will at once be brought into [illegible] is a foregone conclusion. The [illegible] of [illegible] the work has been reduced to a very small amount, and hereafter there will be no excuse for persons tolerating a nuisance of this description on their premises. Messrs. Myers & Co. are now ready to receive orders, and engage to accomplish their work to the entire satisfaction of the most fastidious of our citizens.

The attention of the public is called to H. Wintersmith's advertisement in to-day's paper headed "Chalybeate Elixir or Jewett's Ferrett." It is said to be the most effective cure for the diseases enumerated ever discovered. It is certainly creating a sensation in the medical world and its discovery will be hailed with delight by thousands who have been heretofore hopelessly afflicted.

It is more effective than the Hot Springs of Arkansas. Many persons having returned from that fountain of health unrelieved, have been permanently cured by its use. It is the discovery of one of the most eminent and successful physicians on the continent, whose faith in its curative qualities is sufficiently attested by the fact of the announcement, that if it does not cure the money will be refunded. This statement utterly precludes the idea of humbuggery. We have been assured by gentlemen with whom we are well acquainted that they have been cured in [illegible] of [illegible] which had baffled the skill of physicians of the greatest research and medical standing. We, therefore, do not hesitate to indorse its claims to the confidence of the afflicted.

For the Chicago Convention.

WILLARD HOTEL.—Certificates to the St. Louis Postion [illegible] drawing can be had in the [illegible], at the office of the Willard Hotel. Call and look [illegible] the [illegible]. Circulars containing full [illegible] of the plan furnished on application.

Reciprocal Illustration.

The New York Tribune says:

"The Republican Senator who rises in his seat to-morrow and votes 'not guilty,' virtually says, 'I am the same as Andrew Johnson. I am his defender and apologist. I [illegible] as his companion. His deeds are my deeds—his speeches are my speeches.'"

To which the World replies:

"A man beats his mother, sets fire to [illegible] house, and [illegible] of [illegible] to Horace Greeley's turnip field. He is arrested [illegible] on a charge of [illegible] and [illegible] that he [illegible] a [illegible] on all the [illegible]. LETTER FROM NABOB.

The Radical Success in Georgia Due to White Men—Negro Democrats—Election Frauds—Indifference about Impeachment—The Amenities of Congress Displayed in the Brooks-Butler and Washburne-Donnelly Affairs—Georgia Congressmen—Feeling about the Presidential Election and the Candidates—Crops, etc.

AUGUSTA, GA., May 1, 1868.

My predictions as to the result of the election in Georgia have proved, unfortunately, but too accurate. The battle has been fought and lost. Bullock and the carpet-baggers have gained the victory, and freedom, honor, and decency, have been defeated. The victor of Spottsylvania, the Wilderness, and a score of glorious conflicts, has been, by fraud, treachery, and every unworthy artifice, compelled to surrender on Georgia's soil.

What renders this defeat the most galling [illegible] to bear is the fact that it was caused by the base abandonment of their race and of the honor and welfare of their State by white men in Georgia, who, seduced by the [illegible] lure of [illegible], frightened by the threat of increased Radical violence, or deceived by the belief that non-action was the part of wisdom and [illegible], either voted for Bullock and the so-called constitution, or stayed at home and left the scalawags to walk over the course. In counties where the registration showed a large white majority, the Radicals carried all before them. It is humiliating to confess it, but it is true, that Georgia has been lost by the treachery and folly of white men. In Southern Georgia, where the negro voters are four, five and [illegible] to one as compared with the whites, the [illegible] and Bullock were defeated by [illegible] majorities, and it is indisputable that had the white men of Northern Georgia done [illegible] their duty, the State might have been [illegible], and the [illegible] and ruin which now come [illegible] might have been averted.

The only redeeming circumstance in the whole [illegible] of incidents connected with [illegible] defeat is the discovery that the Radicals [illegible] without their host when they counted on the united support of the negroes. It has been proved that the negroes cannot be all deluded by the land and mule promises into an abandonment of those who have always been their best friends, and even the terrorism of the loyal leagues and [illegible] conspirators cannot frighten them into a blind and unquestioning support of Bullock, Bryant & Co., and that when [illegible] another popular election takes place in Georgia, the Radicals will find that they will be [illegible] by the [illegible] which they prepared for the destruction of the white race. In Sumter county, where the [illegible] strength is largely predominant, Captain John A. Cobb, the worthy son of his distinguished father, Gen. Howell Cobb, was elected to the House of Representatives by a considerable majority. In [illegible] county, also, where the same numerical relation of the races exists, the Democrats triumphed. In the district of which these counties form a part, the Radical candidate, Whitely, the renegade Confederate [illegible], the great [illegible] of the [illegible] at Atlanta, was beaten out of sight for Congress by Colonel Tift, a citizen of Albany, a most worthy and excellent gentleman, true to his State, his race and his section. In Clarke county two black niggers have been elected to the Legislature. In Richmond county, where Augusta is situated, Bryant, a Canadian named Tweedy, a creature of Bodgett's, and a [illegible] named Bentley, have been elected, and to crown all, in Savannah, Aaron Alpeoria Bradley has been clothed with the robes of [illegible].

Everywhere [illegible] frauds of a most unblushing character occurred in several counties. Of this there can be no doubt. The registers and their subordinates under the direction of [illegible] register, [illegible], added, [illegible], struck off, and [illegible] to the lists just as they chose, so as to [illegible] the number and character of the vote [illegible]. These facts are sworn to by men of the highest standing and integrity; [illegible] and town council of Augusta, and the [illegible] of investigation declared that [illegible] to make out their case. [illegible] will be now. The military board to investigate the election frauds will find that [illegible] of fraud have not been substantiated. It will not suit the purpose in view to [illegible] government to be [illegible]. It must be Radical out and out, and so it will be though the heavens fall.

At one time I entertained the hope that the Democrats had a majority in both branches of the Legislature, and that thus the aspirations of the Brown and Bloodgett to be elected Senators in Congress would be effectually defeated. I now incline to the belief that the Radicals will have the majority. It will be [illegible], but it will be sufficient to effect this additional degradation of poor old Georgia.

When the Legislature meets, which will be very [illegible], the effort will be made to [illegible] the [illegible] who [illegible] on the ground [illegible]. There will be [illegible] the [illegible] Bryant's view that the [illegible] will offer [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible]. I have not a doubt that every negro will be admitted, Bradley [illegible]. "We want fifty of these [illegible] will control the case whatever the Constitution may say or fail to say on the subject."

But I speak of the election. The result is all that interests the readers of the Courier, and I give them that, and ask their sympathy and consideration for myself and the patriotic white men of Georgia.

Impeachment excites but little interest. It is astonishing how few men express any [illegible] or sympathy for Mr. Johnson. Every one who reads the reports of the trial, and they are not many who take the trouble to do so, feels that the impeachers have signally failed to sustain their indictment, and [illegible] were the accused as obscure, [illegible] with the crime of [illegible], no jury on earth would convict on such testimony as has been adduced against the impeachment of the elected Chief Magistrate of the Republic. Everybody [illegible] this, and yet nobody entertains a doubt but that the Senate will convict and depose Mr. Johnson, and place the accidental President of a faction of the Senate in the White House. "If the North can stand it, we can," seems the universal sentiment here, and that the North is going to stand it seems to be very certain. The removal of a post collector in former times created more disturbance than an act which subverts the Government of the Union, and which for reckless, outrageous lawlessness, will be unsurpassed in the history of crime.

The Brooks-Butler and Donnelly-Washburne affairs have furnished us pleasant reading, and some amusement in the midst of our trouble. Whoever reads these elegant extracts from the parliamentary records of the "greatest government on the planet," [illegible] satisfied of the competency of the body, in which the speeches were uttered, to arraign President Johnson for the "unseemliness of his speeches" to a mob, and [illegible] such [illegible] observers of the proprieties and decencies of life would not pass [illegible] without censure as gross a violation of [illegible] as Mr. Johnson's [illegible] to Congress "standing on the verge of the government." [illegible] continues in session, the yellow-covered literature of the G. W. Reynolds style will find no sale. The taste for the indecent, the obscene and the profane, will be more than satisfied by the Congressional Globe.

Four out of our seven Congressmen elect are Radicals from the crown of their heads to the sole of their feet. Three out of the four, [illegible], Prince and Gove, are New England Yankees and the fourth, Edwards, I blush to own it, is a native Georgian, is well connected, and bears on his body marks of several wounds received in action, fighting for his country. I think he is half crazy. He is certainly very eccentric in appearance as well as in conduct, drinks bald-face whisky very frequently and a good deal at a time, [illegible] radicalism, and abuses soap and clean linen. There are three Conservative representatives—Tift, Christy (editor of the [illegible] Watchman, an old Whig, elected to Congress in 1865 under "my policy") and [illegible] Young, a gallant cavalry leader of the army of Northern Virginia. [illegible] and [illegible] certainly cannot take the test oath, and they are of such decided anti-radicalism that there is but little [illegible] even Bodgett and Farrott being [illegible] to "remove their disabilities." Edwards, too, will find it hard to swallow the Dundee [illegible], and if it comes to the truth about his valorous deeds in the ranks of the Macon [illegible] Guards, he cannot begin to swear up to the required standard of loyalty. Gove and Prince, being Yankees born and raised, and never having left Yankeedom until just before Christmas, can of course take the oath [illegible], but even if they could not, they would swear anything for $5,000 per annum and nothing to do, besides the little emoluments which representatives without constituents can pick up in various ways.

The Democratic committees, and district and county organizations, will continue to work during the summer and fall, and have a party aligned in battle array in November which will crush the carpet-baggers without an effort, and whose ranks will not be pure white. Our defeat has taught us a useful lesson, and, depend on it, we are going to profit by it.

Of the great men named as probable candidates for the Democratic nomination, I think Hancock is decidedly the favorite of the South. He is considered sound to the core on all the subjects of vital interest to the Southern people, and is deemed available in an eminent degree. Mr. Pendleton is highly esteemed, and were the people free and independent, I think he would be preferred on account of his devotion to the South in the hour of her trouble. But it is thought that it is this part of his record which makes him less available than General Hancock, who will not only receive the full Democratic vote, but a large support from conservative Republicans.

The Southern people are not disposed to take any part in the financial discussion—in the payment of the bonds in greenbacks or coin. They regard that as a secondary question as compared with the great issue—the [illegible] constitutional government by the restoration of the Union, according to the letter and spirit of the Constitution. This question, perhaps all others, and if the Democracy are wise they will fight it out on that line, and not allow themselves to be divided and weakened by the bond question. Besides the bonds are not payable to-day or to-morrow. The subject is not pressing. Taxation will be lessened so as to relieve all classes, when an honest government is in power, which will disband the standing army, send the Freedmen's Bureau back to New England, and put a stop to stealing and corruption. We can afford to postpone the payment of the bonds, and apply ourselves with all our force of mind, means, and physical energy to send the Radical party to the ——, and save the Union and the Constitution.

Our wheat crop has the rust largely, but only on the leaf. It is very forward and promised a large yield, but I fear the invader will extend his ravages. Notwithstanding the late spring and the heavy rains, corn and cotton look well. The negroes are working but lazily and without any energy. They will quit the field any day "to go to town to the speeching;" and as speeching is now very frequent, much time is lost. But let us hope and pray that this year the poor farmer will make something.

FROM THE PRUSSIAN CAPITAL.

BERLIN AMERICAN FEMALE INSTITUTE,
BERLIN, PRUSSIA, April 24, 1868.

You retrace your steps from Kroll's establishment with the comfortable reflection, peculiarly German, that the evening's gratification has involved no unprofitable outlay of time or Prussian money. This, always the most popular and densely thronged place of resort in Berlin, was particularly so during the Christmas holidays, inasmuch as besides the usual attractions of theatrical representations, concerts, operettas, &c., it then offered to the public an exhibition both original and sensible, devised with judgment, and combining good taste and artistic representation in its execution. Kroll's establishment is situated in the Thiergarten, the most fashionable park in the city, indeed the only one of any extent.

This park is, both in winter and summer, the promenade in Berlin. In summer the rich, fresh green of the trees, the beautiful walks, the bright flow of the Spree, its limpid, sparkling waters meeting the eye at unexpected turns among the trees, the cheerful dash of oars from many a little boat, manned by amateur rowers, make it a scene of wonderful enchantment even to those not addicted, as are Berliners, to out door life. In winter the skating pond is the special object of attraction. Thither, between the hours of two and three, resort old men and matrons, young men and maidens. Picturesque groups of merry girls, the bracing air, exhilarating motion, the gay colored skating costumes (Bismarck brown being the gravest of skating wear), faces beaming with excitement, bright eyes, brighter cheeks, what is wanting to complete the beauty of the picture?

What though a tinging [illegible] with rose
The cold will slightly touch the nose;

What though among the hundreds of glancing feet not one pair could sit, or stand, or dance, or skate as the original of Sir John Suckling's portrait,

We foreigners have already found, during our sojourn in Berlin, more philosophy than we used to dream of in the gruff reply of the wolf to Little Red Riding Hood, "Grandma, what makes your feet so big?" "To walk the better my dear!" And is it not an arbitrary taste that would limit the domain of "celestial rosy red, love's proper hue," to cheek and lip?

But to return to Kroll's: its glories are peculiarly summer glories, fading with autumn breezes, and in winter one scarcely hears of its existence, while at Royal Theater and Opera House, people of high and low degree crowd first gallery and amphitheater, parquette and parterre. The Christmas exhibition was really a wonder of its kind, far surpassing those of any former year. Visitors drove or walked there at about 6 o'clock in order to have time for a leisurely survey of the rooms before the beginning of the theatrical representation. Upon entering, you were ushered into a vestibule adorned with branches of fir trees, so ingeniously disposed and garlanded with bright ribbons and glittering with spangles, that you were easily led to suppose the whole mass a colossal Christmas tree. After ascending several flights of stairs and hastening through various corridors, you found yourself in the Roman Saloon, its classical [illegible] changed in such strange wise as to be no longer recognizable. Now you stood amid the splendors of a tropical landscape, with its wild animals, luxuriant vegetation, spicy odors, and soft, warm, balmy breezes. All around stately palm trees reared their lofty heads. About their trunks rankest creepers entwined themselves tenderly, bearing blossoms of brightest scarlet. Monkeys grinned behind leaves and stalks, and branches, while throats of parrots and birds of gaudy plumage darted here and there in ceaseless motion. All this was certainly not [illegible] art, but imitative art, carved to a high state of perfection. These magical effects were for the most part, produced by illuminated pictures, immense [illegible] in pasteboard and nicely adjusted [illegible]. After wandering awhile, literally "under the palms," you repaired successively to two smaller side chambers, in which was prepared a characteristic German entertainment. In the first was a Christmas lottery, "every ticket a prize," where, by the deposit of a five groschen piece, you might win really pretty little trifles. Eager children pressed around the magic urn, and cast longing looks on the magnificent dolls displayed there in [illegible] number, while the weak heart of the strongest minded mother softened to the extent of entertaining a grasp. In the second were allegorical pictures, very pleasant and pretty to look at, but not with specially obvious meanings. You passed thence into the great theater, or King's Saloon, as it is called by way of eminence. It is an immense circular room, with loges, stage, and confectionery in white, green, and gold, of the [illegible] style. Fluted and gilt pilasters which end in karyatides (by Prof. Fisher) divide the walls; the medallions of the ceiling, by Schoppe, contain the likenesses of poets, musical composers, painters and sculptors. A great ball is given here annually on St. Sylvester's Eve, the last night in the year, at which nearly all Berlin makes it a point to be present. Of course, ladies of high rank never take part in the dancing, or otherwise mingle with the crowd, but from the luxurious boxes in the galleries, they can easily see all that passes, and enjoy themselves in the very pronounced enjoyment of those below. This is properly the center of the building. On the other side is a corresponding number of smaller rooms, which on this occasion, Christmas, were also symbolically decorated. Here, even the Reaumur indicating no change in the temperature, we involuntarily shivered amid the arctic surroundings and drew our furs more closely about us. "The ice was here, the ice was there, the ice was all around." Nothing varied the dreary desolation of the wintry aspect, save here a few stunted looking Esquimaux in ugly fur wrappings, upon their dog sledges, which with fearful rapidity would seem to plunge down over icy precipices; there a "discovery ship," an admiralty venture, hemmed in between the green and blue icebergs, from which a "silly seal" looked superior down, with a consciousness of being master of the situation; and still farther away in the dim distance appeared three men in deadly conflict with a polar bear.

These arctic effects were produced by the same mechanism, which, on the other side of the "Koenigs Saal," set forth in such gorgeousness, the tropical landscape. It was with an actual sense of relief that you traversed the fantastically arranged corridor, and found yourself out in the still quiet of the holy evening.

In summer, in default of more perfect and satisfactory operatic and theatrical representation, Kroll's is usually densely crowded. The gardens are extensive and beautiful. Flowers of brighter hue than delicate fragrance, fountains jetting their sparkling waters in every direction, and "music to play in the pauses," few places of amusement possess more innocent attraction than Kroll's.

The building was constructed after a plan of Frederic William IV, by Langhans, to whom Berlin owes also the interior arrangement of the Opera-house.

(From the Detroit (Mich.) Union, May 5.)

When in New Orleans Butler was passing, at the head of some troops, the residence of a very respectable young lady, who, with some lady friends were enjoying the cool air of a balcony. This young lady, whose name we omit for a reason that will soon appear, was one of those impulsive, light-hearted, joyous creatures, whose life is made up of smiles and more demonstrative outburst of joy. Just as Butler himself was opposite, some remark was made, or something visible to the eye of a mirth-provoking character, caused her to break out in a ringing laugh. Butler stopped short his horse, and looking up said, in his rough and repulsive style: "What are you laughing at?" Surprised at the question, and insulted by the manner in which it was asked, the young lady instantly ceased her laugh, but made no response. Butler turned away, but had proceeded but a short distance, when the same clear ringing laugh again met his ear, and turning again, he with still more brutal insolence demanded; "Young woman; what are you laughing at?" There was no mistaking his meaning this time, and the hot blood of the sunny South flushed to the cheek of the maiden as she scornfully replied, "None of your business, sir." Butler, with a threatening gesture, but without reply, rode away. An hour or two after this a file of soldiers appeared at the residence of the young lady with an order for her arrest. She was torn from the bosom of her family, taken to the military prison or guard-house, and there kept confined until the men in whose society she was thrown, either as keepers or fellow-prisoners, accomplished her ruin.

These facts can be substantiated by parties now residing at Kendall, Orleans county, New York, or by Dr. McLane, or wife, and others of New Orleans, the latter having witnessed the transaction related above, from the opposite side of the street.

The Last Ditch.

The Radical managers declare their intention of making their big fight in the impeachment trial upon the eleventh article, and assert that although they may fail to secure a two thirds vote upon any of the other articles, they can do it upon that. This position, when examined into, will be found to be a very singular one, and it is difficult to see how the managers, if they are defeated upon the other articles, can have any confidence in procuring a conviction upon the eleventh article. That article is made up chiefly of a reiteration of the charges contained in some of the other articles, with the addition of the specification in regard to the character of Mr. Johnson's speeches made in Washington in August, 1866, in which he declared that the Thirty-ninth Congress was not a Congress of the United States authorized to exercise legislative power under the same, but, on the contrary, was a Congress of only part of the States, A[illegible]

Now if the President cannot be convicted upon the other articles, he certainly cannot be on the same charges which are contained in those articles [illegible], for before this is reached, if they are considered in regular order, they will all have been voted down. There will then be left in the eleventh article only the charges connected with the speech referred to upon which the Radicals can base a hope for conviction. The idea that the President of the United States can be deposed from his office for expressing in a public speech a doubt of the authority of Congress to legislate under a given set of circumstances, is too absurd to require discussion. It is simply preposterous. But if it were not, those who now demand his conviction upon it already stand committed upon the record against what they now demand. Only a few weeks before the impeachment of the President by the House of Representatives, and before the removal of Secretary Stanton, that same House of Representatives declared, in a resolution, that, in the judgment of the House, the President had been guilty of nothing which would justify his impeachment. The offense committed in the speech, if it was an offense at all, was committed by the President eighteen months before his impeachment, in August, 1866. In the resolution referred to, therefore, the House acquitted the President of criminality in this connection, and decided that it would not justify his arraignment before the bar of the Senate, yet we now see the managers depending upon this charge to secure the accomplishment of their nefarious project to depose the President. We know that the Congressional Jacobins are utterly wanting in respect for the virtue of consistency, and that they swallow their own acts and eat up their own words without any sort of scruple, but how will they reconcile the honest men of their own party to the President's conviction upon a charge which the very men who are now persecuting the President have once by a solemn official act declared to be insufficient.

If the Radical managers are determined to have a "last ditch," so to make it of any practical utility they must make it in some other place than in the eleventh charge. The ground there is not suitable for a fight.

The Resumption of the President's Trial.

The Court of Impeachment resumes its sittings to-day. Whether or not it will come to a final vote upon the question of conviction is a matter involved in no little doubt. A variety of opinions are entertained by those who have the most favorable opportunities of making up a correct judgment. There are those who believe that the vote will not be taken until after the Chicago Convention has made its nomination and concluded its business, and it is suggested in some quarters that the vote will be deferred indefinitely, and held as a menace over the President's head to keep him on his good behavior. It is not improbable that this will be the plan if it is found that a vote of acquittal is certain. It so happens that although it takes two-thirds of the Senate to convict, a bare majority can adjourn the court or carry a proposition for a postponement at any time. The acquittal of the President would be such a victory for him as the majority of the Radical Senators are not disposed to grant, and we presume that they would be inclined to defer the final vote even to the end of his administration rather than tolerate such a result.

It may be, however, that they will not be able to ascertain to a certainty how every member of the court will vote, and, believing that they are sure of conviction, proceed to make the test. In this case, the final result may be reached to-day, and sent to the uttermost parts of the Republic before 12 o'clock to-night. The nation is trembling with anxiety, and this day will no doubt be one of the most exciting it has ever known.

Our special dispatches from Washington, to which the attention of the reader is directed, will give a correct statement of the situation up to a late hour last night.

What Next?

Having disposed of the Executive, the New York Journal of Commerce's Washington correspondent tells us the Judiciary is next to be taken in hand by the usurpers.

In order to insure against the moral effect of judicial decisions which might startle the Northern people, who will hold all the power of government, (we are told,) it is contemplated to add to the Supreme Court such a number of judges as will preclude the possibility of a majority being found in array against the constitutionality of any act determined now or hereafter by a Radical Congress. It is furthermore credited that the first appointment to the bench under the new regime, will be that of Judge Cartter, whose administration of justice may readily be inferred from his subserviency to the will of a cabal illustrated in the matter of the President, and Gen. Thomas, appointed acting Secretary of War. If it be determined to detract from the character of our highest judicial tribunal, and render it politically subservient, the end is sure to be attained by making a few such appointments.

☞ The Dayton Journal confounds Holy Thursday with Ascension Day. Holy Thursday occurred on the 9th of last month, just preceding Easter. Next Thursday, the 21st will be the anniversary of the Ascension of our Lord, a day kept as a holiday, but yet not accompanied with the solemnities of Holy Thursday.

Justice vs. Partyism.

In the shameless audacity of the Radical leaders in demanding the conviction of the President as a measure of party necessity, and the clamor they are making, the masses of the people are liable to lose sight of the fact that the President is arraigned before a court, the members of which are sworn to do strict and impartial justice in accordance with the law and the testimony, and not before a caucus of politicians whose duty it is to obey the behests of the party to which they belong. From the beginning of the trial there has been but slight attempt to disguise the fact that the impeachment scheme was originated solely as a measure of party policy, with the view of placing the entire control of the government into the hands of the Radical leaders, but since it became apparent that there was much uncertainty in regard to the result of the trial, all attempts at concealment have been discarded, and it is now boldly demanded that he shall be convicted because the interests of the Radical party require it. The whole power of the Radical press has been brought to bear upon the court to frighten it into compliance with the will of the tricksters who are only working for their own aggrandizement. Wagon loads of letters and telegrams are daily poured in upon the Senators to persuade or intimidate them into forgetfulness of the high duty they cannot honorably refuse to discharge, and to turn their backs upon the solemn obligations of the oath they took when they assumed the character of judges. Personal solicitations, too, are not wanting, and even threats of assassination have been freely employed to make the Senators forget their duty and to consider only the demands of their party.

Now every one of these appeals, or threats are gross insults to those to whom they are addressed. No citizen would ever think of approaching an ordinary juryman in a civil or criminal trial in this way to influence his decision, nor does the press ever interfere, even in the most important trials to influence the result.

Our readers will doubtless remember a case which occurred recently in Cincinnati, where one of the parties to a suit addressed a letter to the Judge urging him to make an early decision. The Judge, outraged and insulted by the attempt to influence his action, administered a rebuke to the writer in open court, so stinging and severe that, overwhelmed with mortification, he immediately proceeded to his place of business and committed suicide. In this case it was not sought to influence the decision of the judge, but simply to procure an early disposition of the case, but even this attempt was universally condemned by all right thinking men. This judge may have been over sensitive on the subject of his judicial reputation, but if he erred, it was upon the right side. He was no more bound to take offense at the act of the party referred to than are those Senators at Washington who permit their ears to be defiled and their honor brought in question by solicitations and threats, to induce them to violate their oaths and disregard the testimony and the laws, which they have bound themselves to respect, in order that the vengeance of their party may be satiated by the punishment of an innocent man, and their greed for the spoils of office be satisfied by the possession of the patronage of the government. They are now acting in the capacity of judges in the most august court known to our form of government, and conducting the most important trial the world ever saw. Upon the result of that trial hangs the question of the value of republican institutions and the possibility of perpetuating them in government.

Every Senator who is thus approached, either with persuasions, threats or arguments, in behalf of party and its necessities, should spurn the insulter as he would spurn a dog, and if he did not promptly [illegible] kick him from his presence. Every suggestion that he should vote this way or that implies that the Senator attaches no value to his oath and is capable of being unfaithful to his duty, and should be resented on the spot.

The Senators constituting the court of impeachment have nothing to do with politics in connection with this trial. Sitting as judges, it is their duty to consider the guilt or innocence of the accused upon the charges upon which he is arraigned. No matter how guilty the President may be of things not charged in the articles of impeachment, the court has nothing to do with that. It cannot travel beyond the record, and whether he is a bad man, or an unworthy President, has nothing to do with the case.

It is undoubtedly true that such of the Senators who prove themselves honest enough to discard political considerations and make up their verdict according to their convictions and in compliance with the requirements of their consciences, will encounter the howlings and execrations of the whole Radical pack, but the memory of their noble deed will live fresh and green in the minds of all honorable men, and their names will be cherished when those of their maligners shall have passed into deserved oblivion.

English Comment on the Shooting of Prince Alfred.

[From the London Times, April 23.]

It is difficult to speak with calmness of the horrible and dastardly attempt which has been made upon the life of the Duke of Edinburgh at Sydney. A young man who has never, in the smallest degree, been mixed up with political affairs, and has never, in word or deed, done wrong to Ireland, is basely shot in the back while taking part in a public entertainment given for a charitable purpose. His only offense is that he is the son of the Queen; the only object of the assassin is to gratify a blind, unreasoning hatred of British authority, or, as is perhaps more probable, to strike terror by showing that neither rank nor innocence, nor general popularity, can save from Fenian vengeance. In this case there can be no doubt of the origin of the crime, for the assassin at once avowed himself a Fenian, and his purpose was, doubtless, to show that the murderous society was world-wide in its organization, and could strike down a victim. Coupled with the recent assassination of Mr. McGee this deed will bring home to the most doubting minds the true character of the Fenian conspiracy.

We wish we could believe that this crime was merely the work of one distempered mind, and that when the perpetrator had been punished there would be nothing more to suspect or fear. But it is too much in character with the general tenor of the conspiracy for us to be content with any such careless explanation. The Fenians have shown that they have all the will to shed blood, and they have only been defeated in their most formidable schemes by the watchfulness of the British and Colonial Governments, and by the faithfulness of those who are in the employment of the Crown. As this is not the first murderous attempt that has been made, no one can venture to predict that it will be the last. Happily the course of events every day diminishes the influences of those fanatical leaders who compass sea and land to obtain agents for their schemes. The assault on the Duke of Edinburgh occurred at a time when the minds of the traitors in Australia were, no doubt, full of the execution of the Manchester murderers, and of that outrage in London which is now being investigated at the Old Bailey. They are two months behind the march of events in the countries which are the homes of the conspiracy. A new influence has made itself felt since that time. The Irish have spoken in their own country and have denied their complicity with their self-styled representatives. The disbanded braves of the American civil war may still thirst after excitement and blood; the dregs of Irish poverty in Dublin or Cork, in London or Liverpool, may be willing to undertake any vile work to which their employers may put them, but all who are capable of political insight now know that Fenianism, if it had ever seduced for a moment a portion of the Irish people, has been definitely abandoned and condemned. The visit of the Prince and Princess of Wales has shown the world that the Irish are in heart as firmly attached to the reigning house, and to the institutions of the United Kingdom, as the people of the larger and more prosperous island. It is an especial subject for regret that a visit similar to that which has just gratified the Irish people should have ended so disastrously in Australia. A prince of the blood does not go through the toilsome ceremonies of a royal progress merely for his own amusement. He knows that in his high station certain duties are demanded of him, and that chief among them is that he should be willing to see and be seen in every part of the British dominions. The Duke, as the representative of his mother, and, as it were, of the unity of the empire seems to have done his best to please all those with whom he was brought into relations. A brilliant day has, indeed, been disastrously clouded over.

The obvious reflection is that by these acts the conspirators will have lost their hold over even the most ignorant and impulsive class, and will be left a mere gang of plotters without popular support. Such is, indeed, the consolation which society may find amid these most atrocious doings. The late Mr. McGee was a man of remarkable eloquence, great determination, and a rare faculty of attracting and influencing his fellows, but all the speeches he ever made will have been less powerful in the denunciation of Fenianism than the narrative of his death. What has been done for British America by one crime has been done for Australia by another. The Australians have welcomed with abundant loyalty and hospitality the son of their Queen, but the feeling for the Duke of Edinburgh in good health and spirits will be weak in comparison with that he will excite when the colonists hear of him as lying wounded and helpless under the bullet of an assassin. The measure of Fenian wickedness is now filled up, and it may be predicted that the character of the traitors being thus known they will find few more dupes in the land or elsewhere.

[Special Telegraphic Correspondence of the Louisville Courier.]

VOTE TO BE TAKEN TO-DAY.

WASHINGTON, May 15—3 P. M.—Apparently there is no doubt that a vote on the impeachment articles will be taken to-morrow.

PRESIDENT TO BE ACQUITTED.

The indications are that the President will be acquitted on every article.

SECOND DISPATCH.

IMPEACHMENT DEAD.

WASHINGTON, May 15—Midnight.—Impeachment is dead, whether votes on to-morrow or [illegible]

... convictions could not have been secured without [illegible] In his opinion the second article would be defeated by two votes, and the eleventh by four votes, even if he did not vote.

CHASE DENOUNCED.

Radicals furiously denounce Chase, who they say is in league with the Democrats and Conservatives to defeat the measure, to revenge himself for their base ingratitude. Some say they would rather depose Chase than Johnson.

THE PROPOSED INVESTIGATION.

Notwithstanding the summons issued by the managers, they have made no attempt to pursue the proposed investigation. Their object was to affect the votes of wavering Senators by indicating a suspicion that they had been tampered with. It was originated by Butler, whose sharpness has again overreached [illegible] the proposition fails [illegible] and meets with unconcealed contempt.

DISGRACEFUL CONDUCT.

The House again to-day showed that it is rapidly finding its level. Pile, of Missouri, after his clownish performance, approached Woodward and offered an apology. "Sir," said the Judge, "you have been a preacher but your associates have been blackguards, while mine are among gentlemen. If you have any explanation, make it to the House you have insulted." The Judge turned from him in lofty scorn, and Pile sneaked away crestfallen.

GARFIELD,

to-day complimented the financial proposition of Chase when Secretary, but sneered at the Chief Justice for condemning the impeachment. [illegible] owes all he is to Chase, who made him from his boots up.

HANCOCK AND THE PRESIDENCY.

Bets were offered to-day of $1,000 to $20,000 that Hancock would get the nomination for the Presidency, and the same amount that he would carry Pennsylvania by 20,000 majority.

THE KENTUCKY DELEGATION.

FOR CHICAGO.

WADE'S CHANCES.

[Special Dispatch to the Louisville Courier.]

NASHVILLE, May 15.—The telegraph wires have been burdened with dispatches sent from this city to-day to Senator Fowler, urging him by intimidation and threats to vote for the conviction of the President.

A dispatch was received from Knoxville this afternoon, stating that Gov. Brownlow was in a dying condition at 1 o'clock.

A capias was issued to-day and placed in the hands of the United States Marshal for the arrest of Col. Joseph R. Hackburn, Revenue Collector in the Third District, who was recently indicted by the Grand Jury for gross frauds and collusion with illicit distillers.

The suit brought, some time back, by the Chattanooga railroad against V. K. Stevenson and others, for the use of the rolling stock of the road during the war, was to-day compromised by Stevenson agreeing to pay $30,000. The damages claimed when the suit was entered was one million dollars.

40th CONGRESS—FIRST SESSION.

HOUSE.......... WASHINGTON, May 15.

MR. WOODWARD offered a preamble relative to the letter addressed to Senator Henderson by the Missouri members, stating such a communication addressed to a Senator sitting in judgment on the President of the United States as a gross breach of privilege on the Senate calculated to degrade the House and obstruct the course of public justice, and concluding with a resolution that a select committee of seven be appointed to inquire if said communication was received by Senator Henderson, what is the legal character of the offence, and what penalty, if any, the House ought, in vindication of its own dignity, inflict, as well as to what provisions of law are necessary to prevent the recurrence of the same wrongs, with power to send for persons and papers and report by bill or otherwise.

MR. GARFIELD objected to the resolution.

The SPEAKER—The Chair is about to decide the question as to whether the resolution is or is not a question of privilege. In the opinion of the Chair it is not a question of privilege. The wording of the resolution shows it is not. The charge alleged is an infringement of the privilege of the Senate. It has not yet occurred in the recollection of the Chair that the House of Representatives has been recognized by the Senate as having charge of the protection of its privileges. If the privileges of the Senate be assailed, that body is competent to protect its own privilege. Nor would the House consent that the Senate of the United States should assume to protect the privileges of the [illegible]

MR. WOODWARD—Then I ask the unanimous consent of the House to offer the resolution.

MR. UPSON and others objected.

The House then proceeded to the regular order of business.

After some minutes the proceedings were interrupted by Mr. Woodward, who was understood to ask what the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Pile) meant by making grimaces and grimaces in an offensive manner, a manner more worthy of the ring than the House of Representatives.

The SPEAKER intimated to Mr. Woodward that his remarks were not parliamentary. If the gentleman had a charge to make against a member of the House he would have to make it in the usual form. The Chair did not see what the gentleman complained of.

MR. PILE, who had walked to another part of the hall, said: I intended no insult or grimace, or anything of the kind, to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

MR. WOODWARD—The gentleman stood here making calculated signs. [Laughter.] As he belongs to a party that claims to have all the moral sense and decency in the country, I inquire what he means by standing on this floor, in the presence of the Speaker, and making these grimaces at me.

SPEAKER—If the gentleman presents a question of privilege the Chair will rule on it.

MR. O'NEILL—Do such remarks go into the Globe as part of the transactions of the House?

The SPEAKER—They do. The gentleman from Pennsylvania raised a claim to have been improperly treated by the gentleman from Missouri, and the gentleman from Pennsylvania used language the Chair thought was out of order as applied to a fellow member. If he has cause for complaint he should submit it for the action of the House.

No further notice was taken of the incident, and the House resumed the consideration of the bill for the relief of William McGarrahan, reported last Saturday from the Judiciary Committee, which confirms his title to [illegible] of land in California, embracing the New Idea quicksilver mine.

The bill was explained and advocated by Mr. Wilson, of Iowa, as Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, who said in the committee there was but one dissenting voice, that of Mr. Boutwell, who stated the grounds on which he had opposed the bill in the committee, and on which he thought it should be defeated in the House.

MR. WASHBURNE, of Illinois, inquired whether the title of the property was in the United States to-day.

MR. WILSON replied it was.

MR. WASHBURNE then wanted to know what justice there was in giving the property, worth two or three millions of dollars, to McGarrahan or any other man, and why the law allowing mineral lands to be [illegible] and taken out of the possession of the Government should not be repealed.

MR. NELSON said he could answer those questions in his argument.

MR. VAN WYCK opposed the bill, asserting the claim had originated in fraud and forgery and had been propped up by perjury.

MR. JOHNSON expressed the belief that Mr. McGarrahan's claim was just.

MR. WILSON recited the facts in the controversy, sustaining the claims of McGarrahan, and arguing against the claim of the New Idea [illegible], stating if the bill was not passed the quicksilver monopoly in California would control the production and price of quicksilver.

After further debate Mr. Hight moved to table the bill. Rejected by 55 to 73.

The bill then passed by 78 to 49.

The SPEAKER presented a letter from the Secretary of Treasury transmitting a supplemental report on the trade with British North American Provinces. Referred to the Committee on Ways and Means. Ordered printed.

The SPEAKER also presented a communication from the General of the army, with reports of the several District commanders as to the recent elections in Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Louisiana. Referred to the Committee on Reconstruction.

MR. LAWRENCE, of Ohio, from the Judiciary Committee, reported a bill to establish a department of law, which was ordered printed and recommitted.

MR. BENJAMIN, from the Committee on Retrenchment, reported a resolution calling on the Secretary of the Navy for copies of the correspondence in reference to the sale of the two iron clads, Catawba and Oneota. Referred.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, Mr. Lawrence, of Ohio, in the chair, with the understanding that no further business would be done to-day.

The SPEAKER notified the House it was [illegible] the attendance of the House might be desired at the bar of the Senate at 12 o'clock to-morrow.

MR. GARFIELD delivered an elaborately prepared speech on the financial question, concluding as follows: For my part my course is taken in view of all facts in our situation, of all the terrible experiences of the past, both at home and abroad, and of the united testimony of the wisest and bravest statesmen who have lived and labored during the last century. It is my conviction that any considerable increase of the volume of our inconvertible paper money will blight the public credit, paralyze industry and oppress the poor, and that the gradual restoration of our ancient standard of value will lead us by the safest and surest path to national prosperity and the steady pursuits of peace.

The committee rose and the House adjourned.

Methodist General Conference—Prayer for the Country—Resolutions and Petitions.

CHICAGO, May 15.—The General Conference opened this morning.

The chair was occupied by Bishop Scott.

The first hour of the morning session was devoted to prayer for the country.

At ten o'clock Rev. Wm. E. Punshon, delegate from the British Wesleyan church, delivered his official sermon before the Conference and an immense concourse of people, at the close of which the Conference adjourned to meet at half past two o'clock.

In the afternoon session the order of business was the presentation of resolutions.

Rev. A. Wheeler, of North Ohio, reported a resolution requesting the Centenary Committee to appropriate a sufficient sum to establish a German theological professorship at Berea, Ohio.

Rev. A. Brunson, of Wisconsin, offered a resolution in favor of changing the [illegible] and year in which the General Conference is held. Referred.

Bishop Simpson laid before the conference a communication from the synod of the Reformed Presbyterian Church, [illegible] the omission of a recognition of the supreme ruling and divine providence in the constitution of the United States. Referred.

Petitions, with a large number of signers, from Detroit, Cincinnati, Baltimore, Illinois, Wisconsin and Central German Conferences were presented.

Adjourned till Monday.

Commercial Matters

PREPARED BY THE BOARD OF TRADE, FRIDAY EVENING, May 15.

The market has assumed more activity and buoyancy in the leading articles, based in part upon the improvement in the cotton market, which has advanced in Liverpool, as we learn by cable dispatches received on 'Change at 1 P. M., quoting sales of 15,000 bales at 12½d for uplands. The foreign market, however, for other products was inactive and of a declining tendency for breadstuffs, particularly corn. The provision market was dull for lard, but firm for pork.

The flour market, under the influence of the [illegible] weather, has materially stiffened for [illegible] of grain, particularly corn. The farmers [illegible] have to replant the bulk of the [illegible]

The grocery market is more active, the advices from the East indicating an advance for sugar, both raw and refined, and holders have advanced their views, as will be seen by our quotations. The stocks on hand are fair with an increasing country as well as local demand.

Hemp and bagging fabrics are enhanced, with [illegible] demand for the former at [illegible] Bagging and rope are higher consequent upon [illegible] of the raw material, with [illegible] inquiry among dealers.
